Nothing can relieve me from existly lest by any act of mine their incrests may suffer, and nothing needed to strengthen my resolution to engage every faculty all effort in the preparation of their wal-with manly confidence in one another to work out harmoniously the achievements of our National destiny, we shall deserve to realize all the benefits which our happy form of government can bestow. On this auspicious occasion we may well renew the pledge of our devotion to the Constitution which, launched by the founders of the Republic and consecrated by their prayers and patriotic devotion, has for almost a century borne the hopes and aspirations of a great people through prosperity and peace, and through the shock of foreign conflicts and the perils of domestic strife and vicinstitudes. By the Father of his Country our Constitution clicking of a consciousless Gas Meter near shock of foreign conflicts and the perils of domestic strife and vicissitudes. By the Father of his Country our Constitution was commended for adoption as "the result of a spirit of amity and mutual concession. In that same spirit it should be administered in order to promote the lasting welfare of the country and to secure the full measure of its priceless benofits to us and to those who will succeed to the blessings of our national life.

Henry Clay had, introduced a reso-lution providing for the purchase of the original copy of Washington's farewel address, and in advocating its passage h said that "in his parlor at Aehland he had a broken goblet, used as a drinking cup by Washington during his campaign, and in that parlor there was nothing so dear him or those who visited it, as that old MARKET STREET, OPPOSITE MCLURE HOUSE Have at all times a full line of him or those who visited it, as that old broken goblet." Mr. Webster followed, standing motionless, his body bent slight; ly forward and his hands generally behind his back, as he uttered his patriotic and dignified words.

He said he most cerdially approved of the resolution; hoped it would pass. He believed it would gratify the country. He believed it would be gratifying to every man to have the farewell address of Washington, written by his own hand, placed in the National Library. He agreed with the remarks of the Senator from Kentacky in all he had said about the pleasure which it afforded to view the small and even trifling relics of the great men of the which it afforded to view the small and even tridling relies of the great men of the past. He conceived there was no feeling more universal. He arose principally to state an incident corroborative of what the Senator had related, About twenty-five years ago there was offered for sale to Congress a small casket of medals which had belonged to the Cabinet of Washington. There were seven or eight of these medals voted by Congress to the generals of the Revolution. They had been struck in Paris, and the largest of them was to Washington, who had chosen for the obverse the scene of his entry into Boston after its evacuation by the Piritish; the

Please do not confound any of the whisky bitters which topers take and drank-ards delight in, with that altogether different article, "Brown's Iron Bitters." No toper wants Brown's Iron Bitters, for there is nothing in it to satisfy the cravings of his debased appetite, This great iron-medicine gives strength and new life, not a mere unwholesome stimulus. Sheriff Ponder, of Washington county, Tenn, writes that after using two bottles of it he was cured of dyspepsia. No "whisky bitters" could achieve such a result. Mica Wall Papers and Borders.
